Virtual Classrooms →

A virtual classroom is an interactive training session delivered online that aims to replicate face to face learning but can be accessible from anywhere, bringing more opportunities for people to work together. They can be accessed by a single organisation or multiple organisations. Single organisations accessing our In-House programmes can have bespoke programmes designed to meet their requirements whereas our open programmes encourage learning across boundaries and give the opportunity for peer collaboration. They can also be delivered at flexible times to work around shift patterns, and people can log on from home or work.

It was good to feel that I had the same level of training as I would have done if it had been classroom based - easy to use & navigate.

Infection Control Training

The trainer was clearly very experienced and was able to apply what they were teaching to real life memorable contexts, including highlighting the parts that are likely to be most common in our roles.

Testimonials from our virtual classrooms →

It was a very interesting course. The trainer was very knowledgeable and very engaging. Very interesting. Excellent trainer.

Medication Training

I very much like the Zoom platform and find it more useful as there is the ability to mute, and therefore less interruption from participants, which maintains momentum. There is adequate time for discussion which is also useful.

Infection Control Training

I thought it was very engaging and informative, lots of detailed and useful information. Both trainers were welcoming and helpful. The training materials were relevant and helpful. Thoroughly enjoyed this training.

Moving and Positioning Training

Thanks for all the training its been much more useful and practical than any other training I've done in the past.

Loss and Bereavement Training

The session was excellent and there was a total sense of flow the trainer utilised both microphone interaction and the chat functions extremely well so that to me as a learner at times it was not very different from the classroom environment. There was really good group interaction, responses and self-assessment opportunities.

How can online training replace face to face? →

Face to face delivery provides an aesthetic experience, one which utilises sensory experiences, positive communication styles and human connection to improve impact.

Not everything can be transitioned to an online format; however, there are some strategies that we put in place to maximise connection and impact through online training:

- Set up additional cameras to capture practical demonstrations
- Use cameras well to develop rapport with learners
- Considered the length and pace of the session to build interactions
- Adapt activities to ensure they are appropriate for remote delivery

So, what are the additional benefits of using this medium?

- Social Learning – learning from a broader audience
- Flipped Learning – learning between sessions
- Resources – immediate access to a range of resources post training
- Accessibility – can be accessed from anywhere and functionality to support those with learning needs
- Reduced travelling time and costs

What's needed for an online training session? →

- Learners need a well-functioning device - either a PC, laptop, tablet or smart phone.
- Learners need access to a good internet connection.
- If training is taking place through Zoom, learners will either need to have the Zoom application downloaded in order to access the training session through the application, or need to sign up to a Zoom account in order to access the session through a browser like Google Chrome (rather than having the application downloaded).
- If training is taking place through Microsoft Teams, learners will be able to join without the need to create an account or download the application.

How does the online training admin process work?

An email address is required for each participant, and a calendar invite will be sent to all attendees prior to the training date. More comprehensive information, alongside written and video guides for employers and learners, will be provided at the time of booking.

*Really easy to use and navigate.
Easy to interact with trainer and colleagues. Less awkward/embarrassing.*
